

Step Away From Your Picture!

Imagine you are painting a picture...

If you always stay within arm's length and don't put your brush down every so often to step back for a wider perspective, you may miss some opportunities to see where you need to add colors, put elements in proportion, find a different angle or an alternate point of view.

It is the same in life; it is very important to 'step a way from the picture' to step out of your routine and from your old mindset.

Stop moving for a second to ask questions, review your life, maybe even change direction. And do it in every aspect of your life - business and personal.

When you are ready; see life clearly, be willing to use your new mindset, then continue 'painting'...
